Trinity Program Management, Inc. Receives 2010 'Female Business Owners Trail Blazer Award'

Trinity Program Management has been hailed "Trailblazers of the Year" for founding the Female Business Owners Alliance (FBOA).

At the Women's History Month celebration, organized by Rita Samuels and Felicia Davis of Atlanta's Women Flying High, Trinity Program Management, Inc. was presented the 2010 Women Business Owners Trail Blazers award.

Organized to celebrate outstanding female leadership and gender equality in Atlanta, the awards ceremony honored Trinity Project Management President Kelley Brown and Vice President Tracey Jennings for their energetic, progressive efforts to promote female entrepreneurship in the field of design and construction. In attendance were Former Mayor Shirley Franklin and Ambassador Andrew Young, Hartsfield-Jackson Airport Director of Aviation Ben DeCosta and Atlanta Mayor Kasim Reed.

Brown and Jennings created the Female Business Owners Alliance in 2009. A comprehensive network of women business owners and community leaders, the association provides every service needed in a property development venture, from preplanning and design to project management and construction. The Alliance forms a complete development team comprised of women-owned businesses that pursue development and construction projects together, combining their collective experience and expertise in order to best serve their clients.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for female business women to mentor young females who are interested in knowing more about owning their own business in the design and construction industries," said Brown.

Since its inception, the Alliance has united female architects, civil engineers, subcontractors and project managers in an effort to support both up and coming female business owners, and the current industry of existing women-owned companies.

"Tracey and I were truly honored to accept this award on behalf of all the Alliance members. The Alliance is so much more than the two of us. We are so thankful to everyone who has given this Alliance life," said Brown.
